METHODS OF FIGHTING DIPHThERIA EXPLAINED

All Persons Failing to Observe Quarantine Orders Are Prosecuted.

The methods of the City Public Health Service in its fight to keep down diphtheria epidemics are explained by Dr. W. A. Norris, city and county commissioner.

As soon as a case of the disease is discovered, the house is restricted by a quarantine. All persons exposed and especially the children are immunized by giving them 1,000 units of diphtheria antitoxin. The patients are then isolated from the rest of the members of the household.

In the case of adults who have to leave the house for business or to work their throats are tested to see if they carry the germs. If they do not have the germ of the disease, they are permitted to leave the house, but they are not permitted to come in contact with the patients.

Those persons who have come in contact with the disease are called "contacts." Those persons are ordered to keep away from the public for five days and failure to observe the order may result in a quarantine or arrest and prosecution.

The doctors are compelled to give the diphtheria antitoxin, as that is the only known cure for the disease. From 10,000 to 30,000 units of the antitoxin are administered according to the severity of the disease.

Patients are isolated for two weeks and at the end of that time, their throats are tested for germs. If the test is negative, that is, if there are no diphtheria germs, the house is fumigated and the quarantine lifted.

No public funeral is permitted for a person who has died of diphtheria. An open air service at the grave is all that is permitted.

TO NUMBER STATE HIGHWAYS

State Commission to Place Markers on Roads.

In order to facilitate travel in the state, as well as to expedite and clarify road locations for the benefit of the engineering department of the State Highway Commission, all the state highways have been designated by number. The numbering begins on the highways in the western part of the state and all through highways running north and south in the state are given odd numbers up to nine.

One of the main advantages of this method of numbering is that it will make possible the placing of markers on each road by the State Highway Commission. They are set where intersecting roads cross or where another highway runs into the marked road. This will indicate to the traveler just where his particular route is.

The engineering department of the State Highway Commission designates the different sections to be let by giving the numbers of both the section and the highway. In that way it is easy to determine just what section, and on what highway, contracts are let. The method in use in the Highway Commission office enables it to handle easily all lettings under the new bond law.

HAIRNET DAYS ARE PASSING

Shining Coiffure Being Replaced by Bushy Mop.

For the last four or five years manufacturers of hairnets have prospered. Women have been made to feel that nothing is more essential to a well-groomed appearance than a smooth, shining coiffure held firmly in place by an invisible net.

Now, however, the net is passing out of fashion and the unconfined head of hair that approaches the appearance of the Australian bushman's mop is all to the good.

Hair unhampered by a net is combed much more loosely than before. The wind flirts through the strands which could never be suspected of having felt a comb within twenty-four hours.

The Witching Hour

has long had a meaning of mystery to all people. It had a meaning in the life of Jack Brookfield, gambler and gentleman. This meaning is the basis of one of the decade's most popular plays—a play by a native Missourian. Its interpretation will be able as well as enjoyable.
